Harbinger and Xyleme Partner to Help Businesses Align with Changing Learning and Technology Needs

Harbinger Group and Xyleme enter a platform partnership to help organizations manage their complex proprietary content and support single source omnichannel solutions. As a partner, Harbinger will add value to Xyleme's enterprise component content management solutions designed for learning, with effective change management processes, rapid migration strategies for large volumes of content, and more.

Redmond, WA — March 30, 2022: Harbinger Group, a global corporation providing software products and services via its group companies — Harbinger Systems and Harbinger Interactive Learning, announced a platform partnership with Xyleme, a provider of industry-leading unified component content management solutions for content authoring, management, delivery, and syndication at scale.

Jointly announced by Harbinger Systems and Harbinger Interactive Learning, the partnership will add value to Xyleme and its customers with effective change management processes, rapid migration strategies for large volumes of content, custom workflows to handle content variations, an effective scaling up and scaling down model, and mature project management processes.

The forward-looking partnership will be a game-changer for enterprise organizations industry-wide seeking to transform and scale their content, while providing opportunities to align with the dynamic needs of present-day learners and meeting platform requirements for a modern learning technology ecosystem.

Seema Chaudhary, Chief Alliance Officer at Harbinger Systems said, “We are excited to announce this platform partnership with Xyleme. The partnership has come at a time when there is an increasing demand for new learning technology and requirement for meeting the changing needs of today’s learners.”

“As Xyleme’s extended team, Harbinger will help them better serve their customers. We will migrate volumes of diverse legacy web courses, micro content, and virtual ILT courses to Xyleme’s unified enterprise content management platform in a faster, streamlined way and using systematic, custom workflows. Additionally, we will help them with effective change management and mature project management processes,” added Seema.

“Partnering with Harbinger will allow us to provide the next level of best-in-class resources and migration strategies for our customers, helping them transform their enterprise content and with next-generation digital learning technology stack,” said Brad Swingruber, Chief Revenue Officer at Xyleme. “Together, we will unlock the full potential of digital content transformations and place our customers on the best path for success.”
